

The Rundown

February's here—and whether you're still recovering from peak or already planning for what's next, we've got updates to help you ship smarter. This month: one-click Shopify catalog imports, easier international shipping, new EU rules, a fresh look at where ecommerce is headed, and a couple of sellers proving that doing more with less isn't just a catchphrase. Let's get into it.

What's New

Just launched

One click. Your entire product catalog from Shopify imported into ShipStation. Auto-updates every 24 hours. Yes, please.

Get the Update >

Go global with confidence

Lock in duties and taxes upfront with Guaranteed Prepaid Duties and Taxes—with Delivered Duties Paid (DDP), your customers don't get surprise charges. Enable in your International Shipping Settings.

Log In >

Expand Your Reach

A better global delivery experience

GlobalPost Plus lets you offer DDP shipping—so your international customers aren't surprised with fees at the door.

Get Started >

Shipping to the EU? New rules are live

As of February 2, the EU requires more detailed customs descriptions—and generic terms won't cut it anymore. Here's what you need to know to keep shipments moving.

See the New Rules >

Get Inspired

Scaling smart
Spiceology ships 3x more orders during peak without adding staff. Rate shopping turned out to be their secret ingredient.

Get the blend

Ahead of schedule

Stickers4Walls hit growth goals 5 months early with just two full-time staff. Plot twist: dropshipping chaos has a cure.

Peel back the story

Have a success story? Share it with us.

Industry Intel

Trade, tariffs, and what's ahead

ShipStation CSO Josh Steinitz joined Freightwaves to break down the forces shaping retail shipping and how sellers can stay ahead.

See the Breakdown >

The 2026 Ecommerce Benchmark Report is here

Retailers aren't just competing for human attention anymore. See what's changing across the industry—and what it means for your shipping strategy.

Get the Report >

